

Learning Sessions

Large group meetings were used to provide instruction and learning opportunities before groups applied the new information in module team sessions.

Facilitators and presenters met before registration for orientation and preparation.

Lecture and small group activities were used in learning sessions.

Participants were actively involved in learning through listening, taking notes and discussing ideas with others.

Annette Brown, Pacific
Rim Theological College,
Northern California
District Training Center

Fletcher Tink talked about the effects of culture on teaching and learning.

Randy Wells helped differentiate learning in children and adults.

Learning can be fun
even for adults.

Mike Vail, IBOE, led sessions on curriculum and instructional development.

Linda Alexander worked with Intended Learning Outcomes and formation of instructional units.

Jorge Julca informed us about how clergy preparation is accomplished in South America. Scott Meador provided Spanish to English translation.

Antonie Holleman described the degree tracks at European Nazarene College.

